Bhubaneswar: Indian Institute of Technology Bhubaneswar celebrates Matriva Shadiwas and commemorates “cultivating multilingualism for education and social inclusion”. world. The Ministry of Education is celebrating as “Matriba Shadiwas” throughout India with the aim of inspiring people about the need to use more of their native language and other Indian languages for the development and development of the country. Smt. Susmita Bagchi, Chairman of Mo School, Government. The chief guest of Orissa was there. The event was presided over by Professor RV Rajakumar, director of IIT Bhubaneswar.

At that time, Professor RV Rajakumar, Director of IIT Bhubaneswar, said: “India is a country rich in linguistic diversity. Our country’s multilingualism dates back thousands of years. This linguistic diversity is an asset we have inherited, and in fact, we alone. A resource. Basha is not just a means of communication, but an expression of the emotions, heritage and culture of the land that accompanies it. Language is the most powerful means of preserving and developing our cultural heritage. However, the native language of this country is a variety of expressions of one soul, and each of us should be proud of this fact. The National Education Policy (NEP) 2020 opens up gaps when learning in the native language. We attach great importance to our native language because we encourage specialized courses in our native language to reduce it. We, IIT Bubaneschwar, who noticed this, are also considering some inclusions and are considering courses in the local language. As they pursue education and research, they also carry on the strengths of their native language, so that the seeds sown today bear very nutritious fruit for our history, culture, heritage, and nation. I would like to encourage the students to do so. “

Smt. “Since ancient times, all languages have not only co-existed, but complemented and enriched each other, so the culture of the land itself is inclusive,” said Susmita Bagchi, chairman and chief guest of the Orissa Government. “Language”-Limitless is the word that best describes the true meaning of “Language”. Learning the local language is highly desirable for outsiders, but being narrow about your mother tongue may not be desirable at all. Knowing your native language is very important as it helps to create a cultural framework. They shape our thoughts, which convey what our soul feels. It is my proud privilege to say that we are a country blessed with many native languages. Today is the day when we succumb to our love for our native language. The need for time is to promote the use of native languages and emphasize the diversity of national languages, while encouraging the use of other Indian languages as well as their respective native languages. This is even more helpful in creating a sense of unity within ourselves. “

The event was also attended by Professor RK Panda, Dean of Alumni and International Relations, Professor VR Pedireddi, Dean of Students, Col (Dr.) Subodh Kumar, Registrar and IIT Bhubaneswar. The event saw active participation from Faculty, Officer, Staff and Students reciting stories, articles and poems in the mother tongue. The program ended with a thank-you vote by the registrar.
