Kovind advises IITians to become creators of economic value and jobs through their enterprise

PNN, AGENCIES

Bhubaneswar, March 18: President Ram Nath Kovind Sunday advised the IITians to make best use of the Centre's schemes that encourage innovation and entrepreneurship to set up ventures of their own.

Addressing the sixth convo-cation address of the Indian Institute of Technology (IIT) at Arugul here, Kovind called upon the technocrats to become creators of economic value and jobs through their enterprise.

Being an IITian, you should aspire to achieve the best not only for yourself and your families but also for society and the nation and the world at large," the President said and indicated that there are several challenges facing the young IITians who should do their best in all areas that matter, be it teaching, research or social impact.

You as IITians are fortunate to have received world-class education. There is a moral obligation to pay back, and to help those who are less privileged - in whichever manner the individual prefers," he said and emphasised that it would be ideal if this process of paying back enriches education and scholar-
